

REQUIREMENTS BEFORE TRAVELING TO CHILE

Validation of Covid vaccines: Vaccines against Covid-19 are mandatory, which must be validated before entering the country. Vaccine validation does not expire and is a free procedure. Therefore, even if you are not sure of the date of the trip, it is advisable to do it in advance.

Steps to validate Covid vaccines

Step 1: Go to mevacuno.gob.cl

Step 2: Go to the "Email" section

Step 3: Click "Create an account". It must be done with the e-mail address of each person who is going to travel.

Step 4: Once the account is created, in the main menu go to "Validation".

Step 5: In the "Validation" section, you must fill out a form with personal information and attach documents that support each vaccination process.

This information will be validated case by case by officials of the Ministry of Health, who will give an answer to the requester.

Results of the request

When validation of Covid vaccines is requested to enter Chile, there are three possible answers:

- a. Incomplete: The request is rejected for being incomplete or inconsistent. The user will be able to complete their request for a new attempt.
- b. Valid: The request is accepted, and the applicant's data is added to the mevacuno.gob.cl registry, leaving proof of vaccination available indefinitely, and with this the QR with the mobility pass.
- c. Temporarily valid: if the individual is abroad and presents a consistent background, but not electronically verifiable. However, upon entering you may be asked for additional background information.

If the homologation has not arrived, you can write your case to the email ayudaregistrovacunas@minsal.cl. The traveler will be informed of the deadline for homologation of vaccines at the time of making the request, a process that can take up to 30 calendar days.
